ACADEMIC & PROFESSIONAL POSITIONS

Research Director

2023 – present

Kazakhstan Sociology Lab

Astana, Kazakhstan

- Founded and direct School of Sociologists, an eight-month computational social science programme delivering roughly the substance of a one-year MA in data analysis to social researchers across Kazakhstan and Central Asia who arrive with no programming background. Designed the entire curriculum; four cohorts to date, about 100 graduates.
- Core team member, 2025–2027 national research grant (Ministry of Science and Higher Education of the Republic of Kazakhstan), “Computational Social Science: New Horizons in Methodology and Evidence-Based Policy.”
- Supervise researchdata.kz, a data hub for social scientists working on Kazakhstan launched June 2026, and co-organise AIM-CC 2026, a research school held with Nazarbayev University and the International Communication Association.

Research Fellow

2020 – present

Institute for the Rule of Law, European University at Saint-Petersburg Saint-Petersburg, Russia (remote since 2022)

- Project manager, wave 2 (2021) of the Russian Crime Victimization Survey – the only repeated nationwide victimization survey in Russia (42,572 pooled respondents, 2018–2024, plus a 3,456-person longitudinal panel); team member on wave 3 (2024). Responsible for questionnaire design, RDD sampling and stratification, CATI fieldwork management, and data curation.
- Compared public-space CCTV placement across Moscow, Paris, Brussels and Edinburgh, identifying a networked placement logic in the European cities against a symbolic logic concentrating cameras on politically significant space in Russia (Journal of Computational Social Science, 2024).
- Studied municipal video surveillance as a record of official classification, evaluated Moscow’s facial recognition system for crime clearance, and examined algorithmic discretion in the Moscow “Social Monitoring” application and among “112” emergency operators.

Research Assistant (research trainee) Institute for the Rule of Law, European University at Saint-Petersburg	2019 – 2020 Saint-Petersburg, Russia
Research Fellow, then Research Director Maqsut Narikbayev Institute for Networking and Development (MIND)	2024 – 2025 Astana, Kazakhstan
- Directed the social science research portfolio of the university's policy research institute; led a research team on commissions from the Committee on Legal Statistics and Special Registers, General Prosecutor's Office of Kazakhstan, and the Senate of the Parliament of Kazakhstan. - Led the first application of near-repeat victimization theory in Central Asia, tested in Astana and Almaty (Journal of Criminal Justice, 2026), and a computational-linguistics study of the readability of Kazakhstani legislation for the Senate. - Edited approximately 5 policy papers and supervised junior researchers.
Visiting Researcher Nazarbayev University, School of Sciences and Humanities	2022 – 2023 Astana, Kazakhstan
